Role of the United Nations Secretary-General

19:30 8/11/16 Coventry Council House

The next UN Secretary-General will be Antonio Guterres who, for the first time, was selected from a list of candidates. Gian Clare, the Chair of the Warwick Branch of the United Nations Association will discuss the role of the Secretary-General, which has been described as the most difficult job in the world.

The event will be chaired by Rod Fielding and is organised by Coventry Lord Mayor's Committee of Peace and Reconciliation.

Does Democracy Have A Future?

17:00 23/11/2016, Humber Lecture Theatre, Coventry University

The word "democracy" means different things to different people and in different places. Can it really mean such different things? Two distinguished experts will explore these questions. Professor Matt Qvortrup from Coventry University will summarise the history of democracy and Professor Michael Saward from Warwick University will explore its future.

Model United Nations Presentation and Simulation

13:00 28/1/17, Francis Hall, Cardinal Newman School, Coventry

A Model United Nations (MUN) helps participants become involved with global issues by debating solutions to a current global problem by simulating a real UN conference. The MUN Group of Warwick University will give a presentation and simulation of an MUN so you the audience gain a flavour of what it involves and how participants can benefit from taking part.

Single Market vs Free Market? You Decide!

1/3/17 Time and venue TBA

As Brexit negotiations begin, Dr Anil Awesti from the School of Law, University of Warwick, will explore the question of whether the UK should aim to belong to the single European market, free of tariff barriers and with free movement of goods, services, capital and people, or a free trade area in which there are no tariffs or taxes or quotas on goods and/or services from one country entering another.

The time and venue for this event have yet to be finalised.

Coventry Womens Day Dinner 2017

11/3/2017

This Dinner, organised by the United Nations Association of Coventry to celebrate International Womens Day, will include music and short speeches about issues affecting women which relate to the theme of "Empowering Women".

The time and venue have yet to be finalised.
